Professor Richard Pipes

Dear Professor Pipes:

It was a pleasure meeting with you last week to discuss our new Soviet Affairs training program. [redacted] joins me in thanking you for your hospitality.

This letter confirms our invitation to conduct a five-day seminar on the Soviet Union in June. We agree with your suggestion that the students read Survival Is Not Enough in advance of the seminar and that you assign roughly 100 pages of additional readings each day. The seminar would meet for two-hour sessions daily, with additional evening sessions as a viable option. We also concur with your recommendation that you give an examination on the final day.

We are authorized to offer an honorarium of $260 per day for each day of instruction and for two or three days of preparation time. In addition we will provide all transportation, food, lodging and instructional material. One of the first three weeks in June would be most convenient for us, but we will arrange to fit your schedule.

I am delighted at your participation in the launching of this important project, and would appreciate your confirmation of dates and arrangements as soon as possible. If you have any questions, please call me on [redacted]

Sincerely,

Director
of
Training and Education
